Rotarians push on to help community

Alyaa Alhadji

THE Rotary Club of Pudu recently launched a project called “Join Hands with Rotary – Action is in your Hands” which aims to help the club to reach NGOs and charitable organisations.

This will be achieved by having a panel discussion with 10 selected organisations representing a diverse area in which the club feels it can contribute its services to the community.

The discussion will focus on ways to tap the vast local and international networks of Rotary Club to improve coordination between the club and organisations in need of assistance particularly in areas of health, hunger, water, sanitation and literacy.

The project was launched by Rotary District 3300 district governor Leslie Salehuddin, who also oversees 71 other Rotary Clubs in the district.

Leslie, who described Rotarians as being “a bit more multi-dimensional” and the club as a “melting pot” of their diverse skills, said it functions as many organisations rolled into one as it comprises a very diverse group of people who are able to capitalise on one another’s strength.

“The Rotary Club is not just purely a humanitarian club, we have a bit more soul,” he said, adding that as the oldest service organisation, some senior members now have their children and grandchildren actively participating in the club’s activities.
